U. S. IS TO ESTABLISH ORDER IN NICARAGUA

1,000 MORE MARINES ARE MOBILIZED TODAY

STATE DEPARTMENT DECLARES NATIVE REBELS UNDER SAN-
DINO COMMON BANDITS

PROTESTS LAUNCHED AGAINST KELLOGG PROGRAM WILL NOT BE HEED

Washington, Jan. 4.—(UP)—The United States is determined to establish order in Nicaragua preparatory to free elections. Secretary of State Kellogg declared today as 1,000 additional marines mobilized for Nicaraguan service.

The state department reiterated that the native rebels under General Sandino, who are opposing U. S. marine control, were common bandits pillaging Nicaragua.

The national council for prevention of war protested to Kellogg against use of marines in Nicaragua, but such criticism will not change the Kellogg program, according to informed circles. The secretary was understood to feel that the intervention policy has justified itself, since it brought to a close the inter-party civil war in the Central American republic.

U. S. marines went into Nicaragua last spring during fighting between liberal forces of Juan Sacasa and General Diaz. The latter had American support. Protection of American lives and property was given then, as now, as the reason for dispatching marines. Col. Henry L. Stimson, sent to Nicaragua as President Coolidge's envoy, arranged a truce accepted by all factions except Sandino, former liberal general, who kept his arms despite the American promise of a fair election this summer.

First reports minimized Sandino's importance, but he is now admitted by the government to be a strong factor, and it was hinted that he is getting outside aid.

In a statement to the United Press, Secretary of Navy Wilbur said: "We do not know definitely that Sandino is receiving aid from other sources. Reports to the department from the marine brigade commander in Nicaragua indicated, however, that he is." Wilbur said the department was investigating the nature of such aid more thoroughly, to ascertain where Sandino is getting new supplies and better trained men.

The department, Wilbur revealed, had planned before the recent Nicaraguan battles to send additional forces there. He said, however, the recent fights were responsible for immediate orders for 1,000 men to be sent to Nicaragua.

"We feel the present marine force in Nicaragua is capable of caring for the situation," he said, "but the additional forces will be available in case of necessity."

There has been considerable conjecture, Wilbur continued, as to how those entrenched in the wild foothills of the interior, succeeded in obtaining supplies when every other section of the country is under control of American marines.

The province of Nueva Segovia, where Sandino's forces are centered, is next to the border of Honduras.

Wilbur expects little trouble in the forthcoming elections. He pointed out that the rest of Nicaragua, with the exception of Segovia, is tranquil.

The main difficulty in concentrating men to fight Sandino, he believes, is in transportation of supplies. It takes weeks by bullock, he said, to take supplies into the rough and heavily wooded interior, consisting for the most part of mountains.

"We are planning, however," he said, "to send another transport plane to Nicaragua, similar to the one used on the recent flight there by Major Brainerd, of the marine corps, for use in taking supplies to our men in the interior."

BOY IS HELD AS THE BRAINS OF GANG OF 'THRILL ROBBERS'

HOWARD WONDRAI IS 18-YEAR-
OLD UNIVERSITY SOPHO-MORE

HE AND 2 OTHER YOUTHS, SAY
POLICE, CONFESS TO 10
BURGLARIES

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Howard Wondrai, 18-year-old University of Minnesota sophomore is held by police here as the "brains" of a gang of "thrill robbers," it became known today.

With Wondrai police are holding two other youths—Paul Huber, 15, and Roy Odenwalds, 16, both of St. Paul.

The youths, police say, have confessed to ten burglaries that netted more than $1,000 in loot, part of which has been recovered.

Another university student is suspected as a member of the gang, and his arrest may result today, authorities indicated.

"We did it just for a thrill," Wondrai told police after he admitted his part in the series of crimes.

"We always were careful not to damage the houses and always tried to do our work in a thorough and efficient manner. It was lots of fun while it lasted," the youth added.

Police, prior to the arrest and purported confessions by the youths, believed that experts were responsible for many of the crimes the boys admitted committing. Ten homes were entered in the fashionable Hill district of St. Paul over the New Year holiday.

The marauders always wore gloves and they had discovered a trick of breaking glass without making any noise. No clues ever were left, police said.

One of the homes entered and robbed was that of C. L. Hilton, former attorney general and now justice of the supreme court.

Police said that the gang, emboldened by its successes, was on the verge of branching out into the "crime business" in other cities.

entrenched rebel general, Augustino Sandino.

The attack probably will be made tomorrow. Sandino, with a well-trained force estimated at 1,000 men, held a strong position at El Chipote, in the mountains of the Ocal region.

The marines, under Lieut. Moses J. Gould, were operating out of Quilali, five miles away, which they captured last Friday.

Marine planes bombed the rebel positions unceasingly Monday and yesterday. It was believed they had done heavy damage.

The planes flew low over the Sandino lines, picking their targets and dropping 20-pound fragmentation bombs with deadly accuracy. They reported the execution of their direct hits was tremendous.

The aviators disregarded the anti-aircraft guns with which Sandino's men were reported to be equipped, but they were greeted with a heavy barrage of rifle and machine gun fire.

El Chipote is an inaccessible spot, reached over narrow and rocky trails, and an attempt to storm it will be difficult. Sandino's troops were reported entrenched in bomb-proof shelters, dug-outs and caves.

No further casualties were reported.

Nothing has been heard of the casualties to the Sandino forces. The marines have found that the rebels are well-instructed and well

SLOWLY RISING TEMPERATURES END COLD WAVE

FRIGID WEATHER TOOK NEARLY 75 LIVES IN THE EAST

SOME SNOW MAY FALL, BUT GENERAL FORECAST IS FAIR WEATHER

Chicago, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Slowly rising temperatures today will end the cold wave which has taken nearly 75 lives in the eastern half of the country in the last four days, the district weather bureau said.

Temperatures will reach a maximum of 20 degrees above zero here today, and tomorrow there will be a further rise, the bureau announced. Although snow may fall in some sections, the forecast generally was for fair weather.

Charitable organizations throughout the country reported the situation caused by the storm as the worst of recent years. The cold wave arrived at a time when employment was acute because of holiday slumps, and many organizations said their resources were taxed to alleviate suffering.

Railroad service had returned to normal today and vehicle traffic over highways was very normal.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 4.—(UP)—St. Paul's coldest December of this century and the third most severe in 57 years has gone the weather bureau announced today in reporting that the average temperature for the month was 8 degrees above zero.

In 1872, the second year of the bureau's existence, the mean temperature was 4 degrees above, while in 1886 it was 7 degrees above.

For December, 1927, it was 11 degrees colder than normal, which is fixed at 19 degrees above zero. The average minimum was 16.7 degrees above zero.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Moderating temperatures with fair skies give hopes for the northwest that after all, the weatherman isn't such a hard master.

Temperatures in the Twin Cities and southern Minnesota were rising gradually today and the forecast is for a low mark of ten above tonight.

Readings in the northwest today follow: Bismarck, 12; Duluth, 10; Huron, 14; Moorhead, 8; St. Paul, 9; Williston, 14; Winnipeg, 9.

Other cities reported low marks as follows: Boise, Mont., 28; Chicago, 6; Davenport, 8; Denver, 32; Indianapolis, 6; Jacksonville, Fla., 24; Kansas City, 14; Knoxville, Tenn., 8; Milwaukee, 10; New Orleans, 26; Phoenix, 40; St. Louis, 10; Toledo, 8; Washington, 12 and Yellowstone Park, 28.

HICKMAN DEFENSE PLEA TO MURDER IS TO BE INSANITY

ATTORNEY WALSH STARTS COL-LECTION OF INSANITY EVI-DENCE TO SAVE BOY

ARRAIGNMENT WAS IN JUDGE
HARDY'S COURT, ROOM FULL OF ARMED MEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Collection of insanity evidence to save William Edward Hickman from the gallows was begun today by Jerome Walsh, Kansas City lawyer.

Hickman yesterday pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity" to an indictment charging him with the murder of Marion Parker, 12. His trial was set for January 25.

The arraignment was in Superior Judge Carlos Hardy's court, which was jammed with armed men on the alert for demonstrations against the prisoner. The spectators, however, seemed more curious than vengeful, and there was no demonstration.

Hickman's whispered "Guilty" was barely audible to those surrounding him. He seemed nervous and shy.

Walsh, addressing the court, pleaded for 35 days in which to get evidence that his youthful client was insane, and thereby vindicate American youth.

Walsh presented the court with a mass of documentary opinions which held Hickman abnormal. After reading them Judge Hardy ruled three weeks sufficient time to prepare the case and set the trial for Jan. 25.

A crowd that packed the courtroom to capacity watched every move of Hickman, who toyed with his collar and twitched his hands. He occasionally glanced sheepishly at the spectators.

A grand jury, meeting simultaneously with the arraignment to consider another murder indictment against Hickman in connection with the murder of Ivy Thoms, druggist, adjourned without action.

Welby Hunt, 16, confessed accomplice of Hickman in the Thoms slaying, was held to be under jurisdiction of the juvenile court. This prevented grand jury action.

District Attorney Asa Keyes announced he would ask the juvenile court to turn Hunt over to superior court, and then would present the evidence to the grand jury again.

A long trial was seen as the result of Hickman's insanity plea. Under the plea Hickman formally admitted the murder, and should he be found sane, would be liable to sentence of death without a jury trial.

NEW PROPOSAL IN SENTENCING OF CRIMINALS

ADVOCATES FEWER LAWS, RE-STRICTIONS ON TEMPORARY
INJUNCTIONS

REFERS TO SACRED DUTY OF MAINTAINING 18TH AMEND-MENT AND VOLSTEAD ACT

By PERCY B. SCOTT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Alfred E. Smith, who rose from New York's East Side to the governorship of the state, enunciated his political faith in a message to the legislature.

In a 40,000 word statement, the man who may be the democratic candidate for president in November, revealed his entire creed of government.

It included, among other things, a revolutionary proposal to take the power of sentencing criminals from judges and place it in the hands of an examining commission.

Smith advocated fewer laws, suggested restrictions on the use of the temporary injunctions in labor disputes; referred to "the sacred duty" of maintaining the 18th amendment and the Volstead act; called for equality of the sexes, except where laws are necessary to protect women from oppression; urged a minimum wage law and "one day's rest in seven" and advocated the direct primary in the place of the party convention system.

After referring to New York's futile effort to be allowed to make its own definition by law of what constitutes an intoxicant, Smith said such power is focused in the national legislature at Washington.

"Gradually," he contended, "our people are beginning to realize that there and only there can any change in the present statute be made."

AIR MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN U. S. AND MEXICO CITY SOON

Washington, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Postmaster General New announced today he has opened negotiations with Mexican postal authorities for establishing air mail service between the United States and Mexico City. U. S. AMBASSADOR OF THE AIR IS SHOWERED WITH FLOWERS

DECORATED WITH GOLD MEDAL AND PRESENTED TO CONGRESS

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Honduras united today in paying homage to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, United States ambassador of the air.

From the time he landed in the Spirit of St. Louis on the flying field at 1:55 P. M. yesterday and was showered with flowers, Tegucigalpa, from President Baraona to the humblest citizen, vied in doing him honor.

The president arranged today to decorate him with a gold medal and present him to the congress for further honors.

Lindbergh will stay until tomorrow noon, when he will leave for Managua, Nicaragua. He will fly via Leon, on the west coast, a little out of the direct flying line of 150 miles he had planned first.

The new course will cause him to miss by some miles the Ocal country of the neighboring republic where United States marines and Sandino rebels are engaged in combat. Fear was expressed privately that there was danger of the rebels mistaking the plane for one of the marine airships which have been bombing their positions, and firing on it.

Lindbergh was busy from the time of his arrival. After a greeting by the president, the mayor and George T. Summerlin, American minister to Honduras, he was taken in triumphal procession through the city, riding under arches of flowers and being showered constantly by blossoms thrown from windows along the line. Artillery boomed, bands played the "Star Spangled Banner" and thousands cheered.

Such enthusiasm was never seen in Tegucigalpa.

The evening program included a dinner in Lindbergh's honor at the American legation and a torchlight procession.

Most of the crew was saved by the heroism of Naveone Salvador, one of the sailors, who lost his life after swimming to the reef with a rope. The crew climbed down the rope to the reef and then swam ashore but three, including Salvador, were frozen to death.

District Attorney Asa Keyes announced he would ask the juvenile court to turn Hunt over to superior court, and then would present the evidence to the grand jury again.

A long trial was seen as the result of Hickman's insanity plea. Under the plea Hickman formally admitted the murder, and should he be found sane, would be liable to sentence of death without a jury trial.

USED 'HOT' SHEET MUSIC TO KEEP WARM IN DRIFT

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 4.—(U.P.)—"Hot" sheet music that had warmed the emotions of many dancers kept Robert Killen, musician, from freezing in a blizzard. Thirty pounds of the music sheets went up in smoke to keep Killen warm when his automobile was stuck in a snowdrift.

NEW PROPOSAL IN SENTENCING OF CRIMINALS

ADVOCATES FEWER LAWS, RESTRICTIONS ON TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS

REFERS TO SACRED DUTY OF MAINTAINING 18TH AMENDMENT AND VOLSTEAD ACT

By PERCY B. SCOTT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Alfred E. Smith, who rose from New York's East Side to the governorship of the state, enunciated his political faith in a message to the legislature.

In a 40,000 word statement, the man who may be the democratic candidate for president in November, revealed his entire creed of government.

It included, among other things, a revolutionary proposal to take the power of sentencing criminals from judges and place it in the hands of an examining commission.

Smith advocated fewer laws, suggested restrictions on the use of the temporary injunctions in labor disputes; referred to "the sacred duty" of maintaining the 18th amendment and the Volstead act; called for equality of the sexes, except where laws are necessary to protect women from oppression; urged a minimum wage law and "one day's rest in seven" and advocated the direct primary in the place of the party convention system.

After referring to New York's futile effort to be allowed to make its own definition by law of what constitutes an intoxicant, Smith said such power is focused in the national legislature at Washington.

"Gradually," he contended, "our people are beginning to realize that there and only there can any change in the present statute be made."

AIR MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN U. S. AND MEXICO CITY SOON

HONDURAS IS PAYING HOMAGE TO LINDBERGH

U. S. AMBASSADOR OF THE AIR IS SHOWERED WITH FLOWERS

DECORATED WITH GOLD MEDAL AND PRESENTED TO CONGRESS

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Jan. 4.—(U.P.)—Honduras united today in paying homage to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, United States ambassador of the air.

From the time he landed in the Spirit of St. Louis on the flying field at 1:55 P. M. yesterday and was showered with flowers, Tegucigalpa, from President Baraona to the humblest citizen, vied in doing him honor.

The president arranged today to decorate him with a gold medal and present him to the congress for further honors.

Lindbergh will stay until tomorrow noon, when he will leave for Managua, Nicaragua. He will fly via Leon, on the west coast, a little out of the direct flying line of 150 miles he had planned first.

The new course will cause him to miss by some miles the Ocatl country of the neighboring republic where United States marines and Sandino rebels are engaged in combat. Fear was expressed privately that there was danger of the rebels mistaking the plane for one of the marine airships which have been bombing their positions, and firing on it.

Lindbergh was busy from the time of his arrival. After a greeting by the president, the mayor and George T. Summerlin, American minister to Honduras, he was taken in triumphal procession through the city, riding under arches of flowers and being showered constantly by blossoms thrown from windows along the line. Artillery boomed, bands played the "Star Spangled Banner" and thousands cheered.

Such enthusiasm was never seen in Tegucigalpa.

The evening program included a dinner in Lindbergh's honor at the American legation and a torchlight procession.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—(U.P.)—The Russian steamer Ogoza, carrying 250 persons, went down in the Black Sea, dispatches from Constanza said today.

An unconfirmed dispatch said all aboard had been drowned, including 50 students.

The dispatches said the Ogoza sprang a leak in a heavy storm off Novorossisk while en route between there and Nikolayevsk. The ship sank before the passengers could reach the boats.

Other steamers arrived after the disaster.

A dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung from Bucharest also said the Ogoza had foundered.

ITALIAN TANKER BREAKS IN TWO

London, Jan. 4.—The Italian tanker Chituno, with a crew of 35, broke in two on a reef near Constanza in the Black Sea, a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Bucharest said today.

The Chituno lost her direction in a snowstorm and piled up on the reef, which was only 500 yards offshore.

Most of the crew was saved by the heroism of Navone Salvador, one of the sailors, who lost his life after swimming to the reef with a rope. The crew climbed down the rope to the reef and then swam ashore but three, including Salvador, were frozen to death.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—(U.P.)—Melodrama was suddenly transferred from the screen to the mezzanine balcony of one of Chicago's most gilded theatres last night when an angry husband opened fire on his wife's escort.

The audience of 2,000 started a stampede for the exits but was quieted before anyone was injured.

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Charged with murder, Gulob Nickolich of South St. Paul is held in the county jail here while officials of the prohibition department debate whether Wesley Fraser, prohibition agent, the man he shot and killed, was a trespasser at Nickolich's home.

Fraser was shot and fatally wounded Monday when he sought to remove from Nickolich's home a quantity of coke confiscated by the government at the time a still was raided three weeks ago. Nickolich fired at Fraser from a basement window.

An inquest will be held here on Thursday into Fraser's death.

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—Wesley Fraser, prohibition agent who was shot and killed while aiding in the removal of coke confiscated in a South St. Paul raid, may technically have been a trespasser, according to Andrew J. Volstead, legal adviser to the northwest prohibition administrator. At the same time Volstead said the raid, the confiscation of the coke and its removal were legal.

"Chang," a motion picture revealing the hazardous life of the jungle, has been brought back to America by Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack, who spent 22 months in the remote interior of Siam making the production.

"Chang" is utterly different from any photoplay ever made, in that ferocious animals of the jungle—tigers, leopards, elephants and chattering monkeys are the principal actors.

"Chang" will be presented at the Lyceum Theatre this Thursday and Friday under the auspices of Paramount, which organization financed Cooper and Schoedsack in their extraordinary effort.

"Annie Laurie" as Filmed With Lillian Gish in the Title Role Has a Tremendous Appeal

Those who imagined her as a myth or legend will be amazed at the actual woman—for Miss Gish is a faithful portrayal of the real Annie Laurie, who lived centuries ago—whose love and whose heroism turned the tide of Scottish history in a real life drama more powerful than any imagined by a dramatist; and whose romance has come down to the world in the song of the ancient bard.

The light cruisers Trenton, Milwaukee and Raleigh will carry men and officers from Charleston, S. C., and the submarine tender Argonne, with the U. S. S. Nitro as supply ship will transport from San Diego.

Sailings are set for Jan. 9. The marine forces leaving from San Diego will go to Corinto while the forces leaving Hampton Roads and Charleston will go to Bluefields, Nicaragua.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The administration's Nicaraguan policy came under fire in both houses of congress today.

Resolutions designed to remove U. S. marines from Nicaragua, where six have recently been killed in ambush by followers of General Sandino, were introduced in the senate to the accompaniment of bitter words. Meantime on the house side came an outburst, reminiscent of last spring's attacks on the first movement of troops to Nicaragua.

While these outbursts proceeded, the navy hastened plans for embarking 1,000 more marines for Nicaragua service in the campaign to annihilate the Sandino revolution.

WISCONSIN FEARS LOSS OF THROUGH ROAD

THE Minnesota Highway News carries a story to the effect that Wisconsin fears the loss of a through road, and that the pavement may take tourists around and not into the state of Wisconsin. "We hear with some alarm that it will soon be possible to travel on a good hard surfaced road from Chicago or other points in Illinois north through Iowa, on the opposite side of the Mississippi from Wisconsin, to other playgrounds in the middle west," says the December Badger Highways, published by the Wisconsin Highway commission.

"We may soon discover that we are no longer living on the main road but that someone has built a road around us, without the least consideration of our interest or feelings. We leave it to your imagination as to what this change might mean to Wisconsin's future."

The article points out that although about 3,000 miles, or one-third of the entire Wisconsin trunk highway system, are paved, there is not a single through route paved. If this hard surfacing could have been located almost wholly on the primary federal aid roads, there would now be some excellent through routes.

"Nearly everyone is familiar with the activity of the state of Illinois in its construction of a state system of hard surfaced roads," says the article. "We are becoming acquainted with the wonderful activity and awakening of Iowa along this line. Minnesota is not neglecting her opportunities."

Interest in possible Twin City-Chicago pavements is not confined to Wisconsin. When such a route is completed, it will not be a Twin City-Chicago pavement, but it will give continuous hard-surface from many points in Minnesota such as Sauk Centre, Brainerd, Belle Prairie, Owatonna, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Virginia, Duluth, and intervening points, all the way to the Atlantic coast. Before any Chicago route is finished, several more Minnesota communities may be linked to our paving system.

Some progress is being made on three routes which get most of the through traffic, but on each of them there are still long gaps of unpaved road.

THAT OPEN WINTER

SOME time late in fall we read a lot of predictions about an open winter, that the muskrats were careless about putting up heavy steam heated homes, that the beaver were negligent about piling up provisions for the winter, that fur of animals was light and in keeping with a mild winter, that the wishbone of the turkey was an insignificant affair—in fact, such mild weather of a Florida winter variety was predicted that many of the coal men wondered how they would come through and the ice men figured they would have to use last year's ice.

And then winter broke weeks before the calendar called for the official entry of that season. Old Boreas broke weather records which had held intact 50 years. The Brainerd householder shoveled coal until it broke his back and strained his credit.

The trouble with these fair weather prophets is the usual thing in regard to prophets and prophecies. When the prophecy fails, then the author renounces the child of his imagination.

As to the muskrats sunning themselves on the banks and being shiftless about their habitations, a student of nature tells us that the rats have heard about the various muskrat farms where food is freely supplied and that many are boarding there and letting some man provide them with their daily rations.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT IN NORTHWEST

MORE than 1,700 persons were arrested in 1927 in the Northwest for violations of the prohibition law, and more than 261,000 gallons of liquor and mash were seized in the last six months of the year.

A statement issued by S. B. Qvale, northwest prohibition administrator, corroborates statements by Andrew J. Volstead, that prohibition during 1927 made one of the most remarkable gains in the history of the law.

Since July 1, when Qvale took over his duties, 1,460 persons were arrested, 261,278 gallons of liquor and mash destroyed, and 354 stills were confiscated. During the same period 62 automobiles, valued at $23,095 were seized. During the six months, 1,496 persons were recommended for prosecution.

A WONDERFUL TEAM

WE feel proud of our Minnesota University football team which accomplished wonders last year. But 1903 also had a wonder team captained by Ed Rogers, former county attorney of Cass county, and for many years a resident of Walker.

Under Captain Rogers' guidance the 1903 team played a season of 14 games undefeated and one tie, 6 to 6 with Michigan. Rogers' men rolled up a total of 580 points, and only 12 points were scored against them.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press of Sunday shows a six column picture of the gallant team, the photograph copyrighted by A. H. Opsahl. Rogers played end and was put on Camp's selection for a second team.

THE year 1927 has been a good year for the producers of poultry, but hens will make more money for the poultry farmer in 1928 than they did in the year just closing, according to a survey of the farm poultry situation completed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute of Chicago. Prices in 1927 have been slightly below those of 1926, due to an increase in the quantity of poultry and eggs marketed, but the outlook for 1928 is more promising.

MILO E. WESTBROOK and staff of the Outdoor Life Exposition, writing to the Brainerd Dispatch, extends these holiday greetings: "With all good wishes for the New Year. May you receive your full measure of happiness in the Great Out of Doors during the year 1928."

Jane and Her Firefighter

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

A NOTHER FIRE ON BALD PEAK!

Jane, from her bungalow veranda, watched the menacing spiral of smoke rising above the blotch of pines on the distant mountain. Probably the ranger had long ago detected it and called out his firefighters. Valiant men who labored hard for board and a dollar a day and yet over whom just now hovered a cloud of suspicion like that white smoke now settling upon old Bald Peak's slope.

For three weeks not a drop of rain had fallen. Everywhere the woods were tinder dry. And, in spite of posted warnings, one fire after another had blazed out to be conquered only after the most arduous efforts.

Already people were beginning to say: "Are the fires being set?" And, if they were, what was the object?

There were comparatively few men available in this part of the country. Jane ran them over in her mind.

A sudden snapping of a branch startled her. She turned to see a stranger coming up the path. A tall fellow in disreputable sweater, patched trousers, shoes that were gray with dust. A mop of tow-colored hair surrounded a pair of handsome gray eyes.

"Wonder if you could give me a little information," he drawled. "Where do I go to join up with the fire brigade?"

Jane looked at him a moment curiously before replying. Then she said a funny thing, considering the needy appearance of the youth before her. "They only pay a dollar a day and board."

"There are times when that is a fortune."

Jane shrugged her shoulders. "Oh," she said. "Well, you go down to the fire warden's next to the post office. Likely he'll be glad to sign on another man." Then she turned away, but for the rest of the day she found herself curiously disturbed. Suppose that he was the man who had been setting the fires!

For several days she heard no more of him. Then, at the supper table, her brother, for whom she kept house, remarked casually: "I understand they think they've found the firebug. Some new fellow just come to town."

That night, fanned by a northwest wind, a whirlwind of flames swept Bald Peak. At midnight the church bells were started ringing, the fire sirens screeched, automobiles collecting firefighters tore up and down the streets.

Jane, hastily donning flannel shirt, knickerbockers and heavy boots, insisted on climbing in beside her brother. "Do let me go!" she said, and, because Bill had no time to waste in argument, she had her way.

All night long the lines of grimy, smoke-stained men labored mightily, digging trenches, building backfires, lugging water. And side by side with them toiled Jane, herself grimy and smoke-stained, but thrilled to her inmost being by the excitement of it.

And most of the time beside her worked the gray-eyed stranger who was the object of so many suspicious glances.

Yet he seemed to work more easily than any of them, whistling cheerfully and occasionally breaking into snatches of gay song.

Sometimes, he talked with Jane, asking casual questions about those around him. "Do you know that fellow over there in the torn gray jersey?"

"Surely. Known him all my life. He's the town clerk's son."

"And that man with the pall?"

"Roy Libby. Runs the garage."

"And that boy in the overalls, the one that's had seventeen cupsful of coffee if he's had one?"

"Why, let me see, that must be—"

But Jane did not finish her sentence. At that moment one of those giants of the forest that have stood for generations and seem likely to stand for generations more, shivered where it was, swayed, hesitated, then crashed to the ground three seconds after Jane had felt herself seized in a pair of strong young arms and thrown clear into a pile of brush.

And, strange though it may seem, for the instant that she was in his arms, Jane knew that she cared for this man of whom she knew so little and about whom such dreadful things were being whispered.

Dawn found the fire checked, after acres of green forest had been metamorphosed into a seared and desolate waste.

Jane, eating her seventh pancake passed out by the busy crew of cooks, looked up to see a tall figure slip into the seat beside her. "We've got the firebug," he announced. "As I have sort of suspected from the first, it was that boy in overalls. Only fourteen years old and out on parole from the reformatory." He has just confessed he has started a dozen blazes out of sheer desire to get excitement. You see, that was what I came here for. Sent by the state to try and ferret out the criminal. Thought a stranger could do the job better. Tomorrow I've got to get back to my regular work, up at the state experiment station. Then, presently, I'm coming back in a decent suit of clothes and get acquainted all over again."

Jane threw him an odd little smile. Would she ever, she wondered, dare admit to him that it had been a case of love at first sight?

WOMAN PREACHER WINS WAY IN WEST

Ministers to Flock in 35-Mile-Long Pastorate.

Spokane, Wash.—Across a pastorate that stretches 35 miles through the Colville valley of Washington, Rev. Gertrude L. Apel drives her car throughout the week ministering to the spiritual needs of 150 members of two Methodist Episcopal congregations. Each Sunday she preaches three sermons, one at Valley and two at Chewelah.

In this little empire there is only one other resident Protestant minister to assist her in burying the dead, baptizing the babies and marrying the young couples.

During ten years of her ministry Miss Apel has held three pastorates. The first was in Montana and the other two in Washington. All of them were frontier communities. She attends to all the usual duties of a pastor and also takes part in the civic affairs of the community.

To her ability to meet people on a common ground Miss Apel attributes much of the success of her pastoral work. She believes that success of the church's mission is dependent upon making Christianity practical.

"People recognize their need of the church when we make Jesus Christ real to them and help solve the problems of their everyday lives," she declares.

"I do not believe the young people of our times are different from those of other generations. In some cases, it is true, they have come into contact with materialistic theories in their school work and the church has offered them nothing that they felt met the situation. We must approach the people of today, young people as well as their elders, on a ground of common understanding. If we would hold their interest and loyalty."

Beginning her preparation for the ministry before the canons of her denomination provided for admission of women into its pulpits, Miss Apel was one of the first of her sex to be ordained by the Methodist Episcopal church.

She says she has found few obstacles to her service because of her sex.

Calls Learning Bad for Indian Natives

London.—Only six or seven people out of every hundred in India can read or write, according to Sir Chimanlal Setaivad, K. C. I. E., an Indian scholar and vice chancellor of the University of Bombay.

Sir Chimanlal, who visited England recently, declared in an interview that "there are circumstances in which the ability to read and write is of little use, and even of greater harm than illiteracy would be."

At the time of the Indian mutiny, he explained, the statesmen governing the country encouraged education by setting up most of the universities which now exist in India, but not without appreciating the danger of Indian students becoming reactionary in politics.

"There have been reactionary movements," he said, "but there has also been progress in understanding, and the risk their policy entailed has been proved worth while. Then followed lesser men, not so far-seeing who forsake the universities and urged that efforts should be primarily devoted to primary education."

"Now the state of affairs is bad, as there are many learning to read and write, which is not of great value to some, while higher education is being neglected."

"Air Baptism" Marked by Certificate Reward

Paris.—Certificates of "air baptism" are being given in France to encourage people to travel by air.

The first of these were given in 1913 by the Aeronautic club of France to its members, but air-club officials all over France now are suggesting every person on his or her first air trip should be given an interesting and worth-while souvenir of the voyage as a method of propaganda.

Earth's Crust Settling, Sir Oliver Lodge Says

London.—The earth's crust is settling, declares Sir Oliver Lodge, explaining the abundance of earthquakes, tidal waves, typhoons and hurricanes, rainstorms and floods.

"There is nothing abnormal in the operation," he says, "but improved methods of communication broadcast the news of earthquakes and typhoons all over the world in a few seconds. A century ago typhoons and earthquakes, such as have happened in Japan Mexico and the Black sea, would have been unheard of for many months."

"The crust of the earth is continually settling down. If a crack appears in the fabric of a house the house does not necessarily collapse at that spot, though another part of the building may fall because of the crack. Similarly a crack in the earth in the Pacific may cause another crack in a different part of the world."

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Can He Sell?

Look for the signs of diplomacy and conversation in the writing of your friends if you will tell about their selling ability.

A little hook will be visible on the end of the stroke that begins words if the writer is talkative and this will appear especially on the letter M.

Open small letters, such as the o, a and s, will prevail in the writing of one who can talk and will talk.

Large writing, slanting toward the right, is a good sign of the writer's talkativeness. Letters getting larger as the word goes on, mean an eagerness to talk as does the terminal that runs on far from the word with pressure indicated. This means dramatic ability.

When the lower part of the capital I is broad and has the appearance of a boat, there can be found a great love of travel. When one likes action this way, they generally like to describe their experience, thus becoming able talkers and salesmen.

Takes the "static" out of buying

There's a peculiar bug sweeping over the world today that has already sunk its teeth into millions.

Its name is Radio.

No one is immune. If it hasn't bitten you yet, your time will come. For some months you will lie absolutely helpless in its power. You may later recover from its effects sufficiently to go about your daily tasks and attend to your social duties, but you will never fully recover.

The experience is indescribably delightful and the pleasure never-ending—if—There's quite an "if" in radio.

We repeat, the pleasure is never-ending, if you get a good radio receiver and good accessories.

And you overcome the "if" by careful reading of radio advertising. Like everything else, good radio sets and accessories are the advertised ones. It doesn't pay to advertise the worthless.

Advertising will help you in radio as it helps you in selecting intrinsic value in everything else. You can rest assured that anything which is continuously advertised, whether it be a radio set or a can of asparagus, has stood the test.

Radio works best in the dark—but there's no need to buy in the dark.

Let the light of advertising show you the right road to radio satisfaction. Read advertising regularly

But Jane did not finish her sentence. At that moment one of those giants of the forest that have stood for generations and seem likely to stand for generations more, shivered where it was, swayed, hesitated, then crashed to the ground three seconds after Jane had felt herself seized in a pair of strong young arms and thrown clear into a pile of brush.

And, strange though it may seem, for the instant that she was in his arms, Jane knew that she cared for this man of whom she knew so little and about whom such dreadful things were being whispered.

Dawn found the fire checked, after acres of green forest had been metamorphosed into a seared and desolate waste.

Waste, eating her seventh pancake passed out by the busy crew of cooks, looked up to see a tall figure slip into the seat beside her. "We've got the firebug," he announced. "As I have sort of suspected from the first, it was that boy in overalls. Only fourteen years old and out on parole from the reformatory. He has just confessed he has started a dozen blazes out of sheer desire to get excitement. You see, that was what I came here for. Sent by the state to try and ferret out the criminal. Thought a stranger could do the job better. Tomorrow I've got to get back to my regular work, up at the state experiment station. Then, presently, I'm coming back in a decent suit of clothes and get acquainted all over again."

Jane threw him an odd little smile. Would she ever, she wondered, dare admit to him that it had been a case of love at first sight?

WOMAN PREACHER WINS WAY IN WEST

Ministers to Flock in 35-Mile-Long Pastorate.

Spokane, Wash.—Across a pastorate that stretches 35 miles through the Colville valley of Washington, Rev. Gertrude L. Apel drives her car throughout the week ministering to the spiritual needs of 150 members of two Methodist Episcopal congregations. Each Sunday she preaches three sermons, one at Valley and two at Chewelah.

In this little empire there is only one other resident Protestant minister to assist her in burying the dead, baptizing the babies and marrying the young couples.

During ten years of her ministry Miss Apel has held three pastorates. The first was in Montana and the other two in Washington. All of them were frontier communities. She attends to all the usual duties of a pastor and also takes part in the civic affairs of the community.

To her ability to meet people on a common ground Miss Apel attributes much of the success of her pastoral work. She believes that success of the church's mission is dependent upon making Christianity practical.

"People recognize their need of the church when we make Jesus Christ real to them and help solve the problems of their everyday lives," she declares.

"I do not believe the young people of our times are different from those of other generations. In some cases, it is true, they have come into contact with materialistic theories in their school work and the church has offered them nothing that they felt met the situation. We must approach the people of today, young people as well as their elders, on a ground of common understanding. If we would hold their interest and loyalty."

Beginning her preparation for the ministry before the canons of her denomination provided for admission of women into its pulpits, Miss Apel was one of the first of her sex to be ordained by the Methodist Episcopal church.

She says she has found few obstacles to her service because of her sex.

Calls Learning Bad for Indian Natives

London.—Only six or seven people out of every hundred in India can read or write, according to Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, K. C. I. E., an Indian scholar and vice chancellor of the University of Bombay.

Sir Chimanlal, who visited England recently, declared in an interview that "there are circumstances in which the ability to read and write is of little use, and even of greater harm than illiteracy would be."

At the time of the Indian mutiny, he explained, the statesmen governing the country encouraged education by setting up most of the universities which now exist in India, but not without appreciating the danger of Indian students becoming reactionary in politics.

"There have been reactionary movements," he said, "but there has also been progress in understanding, and the risk their policy entailed has been proved worth while. Then followed lesser men, not so farseeing who forsook the universities and urged that efforts should be primarily devoted to primary education."

"Now the state of affairs is bad, as there are many learning to read and write, which is not of great value to some, while higher education is being neglected."

"Air Baptism" Marked by Certificate Reward

Paris.—Certificates of "air baptism" are being given in France to encourage people to travel by air.

The first of these were given in 1913 by the Aeronautic club of France to its members, but air-club officials all over France now are suggesting every person on his or her first air trip should be given an interesting and worth-while souvenir of the voyage as a method of propaganda.

Earth's Crust Settling, Sir Oliver Lodge Says

London.—The earth's crust is settling, declares Sir Oliver Lodge, explaining the abundance of earthquakes, tidal waves, typhoons and hurricanes, rainstorms and floods.

"There is nothing abnormal in the operation," he says, "but improved methods of communication broadcast the news of earthquakes and typhoons all over the world in a few seconds. A century ago typhoons and earthquakes, such as have happened in Japan Mexico and the Black sea, would have been unheard of for many months."

"The crust of the earth is continually settling down. If a crack appears in the fabric of a house the house does not necessarily collapse at that spot, though another part of the building may fall because of the crack. Similarly a crack in the earth in the Pacific may cause another crack in a different part of the world."

Can He Sell?

Look for the signs of diplomacy and conversation in the writing of your friends if you will tell about their selling ability.

A little hook will be visible on the end of the stroke that begins words if the writer is talkative and this will appear especially on the letter M.

Open small letters, such as the o, a and s, will prevail in the writing of one who can talk and will talk.

Large writing, slanting toward the right, is a good sign of the writer's talkativeness. Letters getting larger as the word goes on, mean an eagerness to talk as does the terminal that runs on far from the word with pressure indicated. This means dramatic ability.

When the lower part of the capital I is broad and has the appearance of a boat, there can be found a great love of travel. When one likes action this way, they generally like to describe their experience, thus becoming able talkers and salesmen.

Takes the "static" out of buying

There's a peculiar bug sweeping over the world today that has already sunk its teeth into millions.

Its name is Radio.

No one is immune. If it hasn't bitten you yet, your time will come. For some months you will lie absolutely helpless in its power. You may later recover from its effects sufficiently to go about your daily tasks and attend to your social duties, but you will never fully recover.

The experience is indescribably delightful and the pleasure never-ending—if—There's quite an "if" in radio.

We repeat, the pleasure is never-ending, if you get a good radio receiver and good accessories.

And you overcome the "if" by careful reading of radio advertising. Like everything else, good radio sets and accessories are the advertised ones. It doesn't pay to advertise the worthless.

Advertising will help you in radio as it helps you in selecting intrinsic value in everything else. You can rest assured that anything which is continuously advertised, whether it be a radio set or a can of asparagus, has stood the test.

Radio works best in the dark—but there's no need to buy in the dark.

Let the light of advertising show you the right road to radio satisfaction. Read advertising regularly

INVESTED $50,000 OF FRIEND'S CASH IN PRIZE FIGHTER

JOE JACOBS BOUGHT JACK DELANEY OF BRIDGEPORT FOR THAT AMOUNT

FINDS HARD TIME TO MATCH HIS NEW CHARGE FOR BOUT IN GARDEN

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 4.—For a man who has just invested $50,000 of a friend's money in 175 pounds of prize fighter, little Joe Jacobs is having his troubles.

Having bought Jack Delaney of Bridgeport for what constitutes a record price for light heavyweights, Joe was anxious to start right in and realize upon the investment.

When a fight manager reaches that frame of mind—as most of them do, most of the time—the next step is around the corner to Tex Rickard's office on 49th Street. The office is kept comfortably stocked with hungry fight managers, the Paulino Uzcudun syndicate filling two-thirds of it, with Billy Gibson lounging in one of the deep leather arm chairs and Jimmy Johnston popping in and out and whispering mysteriously.

Somehow or other, the holiday spirit seemed to be missing when Jacobs strolled around. The "welcome" had been worn off the door mat, and a neat card informed Joe that the paying teller's window was closed because of cold weather.

"I have come," announced Jacobs upon whom the frost had no more effect than upon an Eskimo, "to sign my new meal ticket for a bout with the winner of next week's business deal between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney."

"Take him away and get him a reputation," replied the unfeeling Mr. Rickard, suggesting that Delaney take on Johnny Risko or Nap Dorval.

At the suggestion that the "Rapi-er of the North," the "Flashing-Eyed French Canadian" or even the "Bridgeport Bludgeoner," who only a year ago was packing the customers into Rickard's arena, needed a reputation, Jacobs swooned into the arms of Will McCarney, his associate in the business of owning and eating off the efforts of Jack Delaney.

There being no way in which Jacobs could realize real money from his $50,000 investment in these parts outside of Madison Square Garden, Joe squawked loudly and long, thereby qualifying as a really big time fight manager.

Joe mentioned the "run-around" and other phases of the boxing business and waxed so indignant that steam stood out on his collar.

"All right for you, Mr. Rickard," he said. "I am leaving for Philadelphia and Chicago to arrange engagements for the 'Rapi-er of the North'."

Jacobs is in Philadelphia today, presumably to arrange for a business deal between Delaney and Tommy Loughran, the present holder of the world's light heavyweight championship.

After that, Joe will continue to Chicago, where he will talk with Jim Mullen concerning a fight between Delaney and Gene Tunney for the heavyweight title.

Mullen insists that he has authorization in writing to arrange for a Tunney fight. Jacobs has a fairly logical opponent, as such things go where Gene is concerned. There might be some business done in Chicago this week which would startle the boxing world.

WINS 10 ROUND DECISION OVER JOHNNY MCCOY

RINGSIDE CRITICS MAINTAIN IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN CALLED DRAW

MCCOY HAD RECENTLY GAINED TITLE VACATED BY FIDEL LA BARBA

Los Angeles, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Newsboy Brown won the right to call himself flyweight champion of the world when he was awarded a ten round decision over Johnny McCoy of Cleveland here last night.

The decision was unpopular. Ringside critics believed McCoy deserved at least a draw.

McCoy recently was awarded the title vacated by Fidel La Barba. He won an elimination tournament staged by the California State Athletic Commission at the Hollywood American Legion stadium.

Corporal Izzy Schwartz, who won a similar tournament in New York by defeating Newsboy Brown, was beaten by McCoy in the Hollywood tournament.

PREHN IS NAMED CHAIRMAN ILLINOIS BOXING COMMISSION

Chicago, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Paul Prehn, wrestling and boxing coach at the University of Illinois, was elected chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission yesterday, succeeding John C. Righier, who resigned recently.

Prehn is the third chairman since boxing was legalized in Illinois in April, 1926. He is the only remaining member of the original commission.

At the regular weekly meeting, Joe Glaser, manager of Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, was reinstated after three weeks' suspension. He apologized to the commission for conduct following the Shea-Babe Ruth fight.

Bobby Allen was suspended for appearing overweight, and Seal Harris and Bill Tate were barred for stalling in a recent bout.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

In addition to being the best all-around sportswoman among the lawn tennis stars, pretty Senorita d'Alvarez now aspires to authorship.

"The Confessions of a Lawn Tennis Player" is to be the title of a book upon which the vivacious Spanish girl is toiling in a little retreat just above Menton on the blue Mediterranean.

The old subject of amateurism in tennis—so oft-discussed, so seldom settled—is the central theme of the senorita's book. Friends who have peeped into its pages say that the confessions are likely to prove somewhat shocking. "Amateur tennis is not always so amateur as it seems," remarked Senorita d'Alvarez in a colophon. She promises to expose fearlessly some of the ways of accepting remuneration without taking pay.

The theme of amateurism is agitating French tennis just now. Paul Feret, one of the best players in France, wants his amateur standing restored. He played with C. C. Pyle's traveling troupe last winter.

The French Tennis Federation has refused to make Feret an amateur unless he waits the customary five years without accepting pay.

Feret, in applying for reinstatement, intimated that professional tennis has "blown up."

C. C. Pyle feels differently, however. "I do not feel that professional tennis is over," writes Pyle. "I believe it will continue from year to year."

"It is my thought that this year will be a very good one for a professional tennis tournament. Professional tennis players are increasing in number and they are bound to have an annual tournament."

"I may be interested in the promotion of a tournament this year, but must wait for developments. It will be a great thing for tennis when the amateur bodies keep the amateur tennis players amateur and the professionals come out into the open and let the public know that they are professional tennis players."

Senorita d'Alvarez, in presenting her "confessions," does not intend to give up the game. She motors daily to the courts of the Menton Croquet Club for practice.

Not far away, at Nice, another famous tennis star is twinkling quietly this winter. Suzanne Lenglen, finding herself an out-and-out professional, is also finding out that her public is somewhat less interested in her than before she and papa came out frankly and took the $50,000.

Suzanne, too, is literally inclined, but her pen is not as facile as her racquet. Her "confessions" remain in the form of scribbled notes.

Amateur rules work differently in different countries. Betty Nuthall, the beautiful English star, is appearing in the "movies." Our own Helen Wills may not, says the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association. It had been planned to have Miss Wills appear in an educational film in which she would illustrate some of the tennis lessons she has been writing for the United Feature Syndicate.

There seemed absolutely no reason why Miss Wills, who also illustrates with her pen and brush, should not do so on the screen. But the U. S. L. T. A. said that that would make Helen a professional.

FIVE CAB DRIVERS WHO TOOK PLUNGE IN SERIOUS SHAPE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Although the five cab drivers who yesterday plunged with a cab down a 135-foot cliff here remained in a serious condition, attending doctors today said they would recover.

The cab veered on an icy stretch of pavement, went over the edge of the cliff and came to a stop—a mass of wreckage—against a tree 135 feet below the roadway.

The men were returning to Minneapolis from the capitol in St. Paul where they obtained driver licenses for the New Year.

AUTHORITIES SEARCH FOR MEN WHO BEAT SCHOOL TEACHER

Clear Lake, S. D., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Minnesota and North Dakota authorities were asked today to search for two men who Tuesday forced Miss Vera Converse, 22, a school teacher, to sign a $50 check, beat her when she resisted, and then left her drugged in a school house near here. The men escaped in an automobile.

SEEKS REOPENING OF TEAPOT DOME OIL INVESTIGATION

Washington, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Senator Norris introduced a resolution today seeking reopening of the Teapot Dome oil investigation to ascertain what persons received bonds of the Continental Trading company, some of which allegedly passed into the hands of former Secretary of Interior Fall shortly after he had leased Teapot Dome to Harry Sinclair.

Big Ten Attendance Is Estimated at 1,615,000

A new attendance record was established for Western conference football games this past season, exceeding previous totals by approximately half a million. Estimates of the crowds at ten Big Ten fields total 1,615,000. Michigan leading all the others with 330,000 for the first five games in the new $2,000,000 stadium. For each of their three games—against Ohio, Navy and Minnesota—the Wolverines drew 86,000 persons, only a few thousand less than the all-time record through which saw Red Grange fade out of the Big Ten at Ohio State two years ago.

The season estimated totals for each conference school are: Michigan, 330,000; Chicago, 250,000; Illinois, 215,000; Northwestern, 200,000; Ohio State, 200,000; Minnesota, 175,000; Wisconsin, 97,000; Indiana, 67,000; Iowa, 46,000; Purdue, 35,000.

Indians' New Pilot

William George ("Billy") Evans has thrown aside the duds he wore behind the plate for the 20 years he was an American league umpire to become the first general manager of the Cleveland baseball club under its new ownership.

Western League Is Gold Mine for the Railroads

Every player who followed one of the eight Western league clubs around the circuit during the season recently ended traveled more than 12,500 miles, or half the distance around the world.

The league is spread over six of the largest states in the Union—Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Colorado. The distance by rail between Des Moines, Iowa, and Amarillo, Texas, the extreme ends of the baseball battle ground, is 969 miles.

"The Western league is a great asset to the railroads," remarked Dale Gear, the league's president, as he scanned the reports on transportation expenses received at his office.

INVESTED $50,000 OF FRIEND'S CASH IN PRIZE FIGHTER

JOE JACOBS BOUGHT JACK DELANEY OF BRIDGEPORT FOR THAT AMOUNT

FINDS HARD TIME TO MATCH HIS NEW CHARGE FOR BOUT IN GARDEN

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 4.—For a man who has just invested $50,000 of a friend's money in 175 pounds of prize fighter, little Joe Jacobs is having his troubles.

Having bought Jack Delaney of Bridgeport for what constitutes a record price for light heavyweights, Joe was anxious to start right in and realize upon the investment.

When a fight manager reaches that frame of mind—as most of them do, most of the time—the next step is around the corner to Tex Rickard's office on 49th Street. The office is kept comfortably stocked with hungry fight managers, the Paulino Uzcudun syndicate filling two-thirds of it, with Billy Gibson lounging in one of the deep leather arm chairs and Jimmy Johnston popping in and out and whispering mysteriously.

Somewhat or other, the holiday spirit seemed to be missing when Jacobs strolled around. The "welcome" had been worn off the door mat, and a neat card informed Joe that the paying teller's window was closed because of cold weather.

"I have come," announced Jacobs upon whom the frost had no more effect than upon an Eskimo, "to sign my new meal ticket for a bout with the winner of next week's business deal between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney."

"Take him away and get him a reputation," replied the unfeeling Mr. Rickard, suggesting that Delaney take on Johnny Risko or Nap Dorval.

At the suggestion that the "Rapier of the North," the "Flashing-Eyed French Canadian" or even the "Bridgeport Bludgeoner," who only a year ago was packing the customers into Rickard's arena, needed a reputation, Jacobs swooned into the arms of Will McCarney, his associate in the business of owning and eating off the efforts of Jack Delaney.

There being no way in which Jacobs could realize real money from his $50,000 investment in these parts outside of Madison Square Garden, Joe squawked loudly and long, thereby qualifying as a really big time fight manager.

Joe mentioned the "run-around" and other phases of the boxing business and waxed so indignant that steam stood out on his collar.

"All right for you, Mr. Rickard," he said. "I am leaving for Philadelphia and Chicago to arrange engagements for the 'Rapier of the North.'"

Jacobs is in Philadelphia today, presumably to arrange for a business deal between Delaney and Tommy Loughran, the present holder of the world's light heavyweight championship.

After that, Joe will continue to Chicago, where he will talk with Jim Mullen concerning a fight between Delaney and Gene Tunney for the heavyweight title.

Mullen insists that he has authorization in writing to arrange for a Tunney fight. Jacobs has a fairly logical opponent, as such things go where Gene is concerned. There might be some business done in Chicago this week which would startle the boxing world.

WINS 10 ROUND DECISION OVER JOHNNY MCCOY

RINGSIDE CRITICS MAINTAIN IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN CALLED DRAW

MCCOY HAD RECENTLY GAINED TITLE VACATED BY FIDEL LA BARBA

Los Angeles, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Newsboy Brown won the right to call himself flyweight champion of the world when he was awarded a ten round decision over Johnny McCoy of Cleveland here last night.

The decision was unpopular. Ringside critics believed McCoy deserved at least a draw.

McCoy recently was awarded the title vacated by Fidel La Barba. He won an elimination tournament staged by the California State Athletic Commission at the Hollywood American Legion stadium.

Corporal Izzy Schwartz, who won a similar tournament in New York by defeating Newsboy Brown, was beaten by McCoy in the Hollywood tournament.

PREHN IS NAMED CHAIRMAN ILLINOIS BOXING COMMISSION

Chicago, Jan. 4.—(UP)—Paul Prehn, wrestling and boxing coach at the University of Illinois, was elected chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission yesterday, succeeding John C. Righeimer, who resigned recently.

Prehn is the third chairman since boxing was legalized in Illinois in April, 1926. He is the only remaining member of the original commission.

At the regular weekly meeting, Joe Glaser, manager of Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, was reinstated after three weeks' suspension. He apologized to the commission for conduct following the Shea-Babe Ruth fight.

Bobby Allen was suspended for appearing overweight, and Seal Harris and Bill Tate were barred for stalling in a recent bout.

SPORTSMATTER BY FRANK GETTY UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

In addition to being the best all-around sportswoman among the lawn tennis stars, pretty Senorita d'Alvarez now aspires to authorship. "The Confessions of a Lawn Tennis Player" is to be the title of a book upon which the vivacious Spanish girl is toiling in a little retreat just above Menton on the blue Mediterranean.

The old subject of amateurism in tennis—so oft-discussed, so seldom settled—is the central theme of the senorita's book. Friends who have peeped into its pages say that the confessions are likely to prove somewhat shocking. "Amateur tennis is not always so amateur as it seems," remarked Senorita d'Alvarez in a colophon. She promises to expose fearlessly some of the ways of accepting remuneration without taking pay.

The theme of amateurism is agitating French tennis just now. Paul Feret, one of the best players in France, wants his amateur standing restored. He played with C. C. Pyle's traveling troupe last winter.

The French Tennis Federation has refused to make Feret an amateur unless he waits the customary five years without accepting pay.

Feret, in applying for reinstatement, intimated that professional tennis has "blown up."

C. C. Pyle feels differently, however. "I do not feel that professional tennis is over," writes Pyle. "I believe it will continue from year to year."

"It is my thought that this year will be a very good one for a professional tennis tournament. Professional tennis players are increasing in number and they are bound to have an annual tournament."

"I may be interested in the promotion of a tournament this year, but must wait for developments. It will be a great thing for tennis when the amateur bodies keep the amateur tennis players amateur and the professionals come out into the open and let the public know that they are professional tennis players."

Senorita d'Alvarez, in presenting her "confessions," does not intend to give up the game. She motors daily to the courts of the Menton Croquet Club for practice.

Not far away, at Nice, another famous tennis star is twinkling quietly this winter. Suzanne Lenglen, finding herself an out-and-out professional, is also finding out that her public is somewhat less interested in her than before she and papa came out frankly and took the $50,000.

Suzanne, too, is literally inclined, but her pen is not as facile as her racquet. Her "confessions" remain in the form of scribbled notes.

Amateur rules work differently in different countries. Betty Nphail, the beautiful English star, is appearing in the "movies." Our own Helen Wills may not, says the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association. It had been planned to have Miss Wills appear in an educational film in which she would illustrate some of the tennis lessons she has been writing for the United Feature Syndicate.

There seemed absolutely no reason why Miss Wills, who also illustrates with her pen and brush, should not do so on the screen. But the U. S. L. T. A. said that that would make Helen a professional.

FIVE CAB DRIVERS WHO TOOK PLUNGE IN SERIOUS SHAPE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 4.—(UP)—Although the five cab drivers who yesterday plunged with a cab down a 135-foot cliff here remained in a serious condition, attending doctors today said they would recover.

The cab veered on an icy stretch of pavement, went over the edge of the cliff and came to a stop—a mass of wreckage—against a tree 135 feet below the roadway.

The men were returning to Minneapolis from the capitol in St. Paul where they obtained driver licenses for the New Year.

Big Ten Attendance Is Estimated at 1,615,000

A new attendance record was established for Western conference football games this past season, exceeding previous totals by approximately half a million. Estimates of the crowds at ten Big Ten fields total 1,615,000, Michigan leading all the others with 330,000 for the first five games in the new $2,000,000 stadium. For each of their three games—against Ohio, Navy and Minnesota—the Wolverines drew 86,000 persons, only a few thousand less than the all-time record through which saw Red Grange fade out of the Big Ten at Ohio State two years ago.

The season estimated totals for each conference school are: Michigan, 330,000; Chicago, 250,000; Illinois, 215,000; Northwestern, 200,000; Ohio State, 200,000; Minnesota, 175,000; Wisconsin, 97,000; Indiana, 67,000; Iowa, 46,000; Purdue, 35,000.

FILE DEMURRER TO LONG INDICTMENTS

Murphy and Cook Put in Demurrers to Two Indictments Against P. J. Long

HEARING JANUARY 6

Claims That Matter is Within the Exclusive Jurisdiction of the Federal Courts

Murphy and Cook, attorneys for P. J. Long, released on bail of $5,000 following return of four indictments by the grand jury on charges of receiving stolen property to the amount of $12,000 from Almon H. Proctor, cashier of the First National bank of Ironton and "being an accessory to a felony," yesterday afternoon put in demurrers to two of the indictments.

The demurrers are to be argued before Judge Bert Fessler Friday, January 6, at Duluth. Chester Wilson, assistant attorney general and County Attorney W. F. Wieland will appear for the state with Murphy and Cook appearing for the defendant.

The defendant through his attorneys withdrew his plea of not guilty and demurred on the grounds that the crime charged is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts, and that acts charged as the offense are not stated with such a degree of certainty as to enable the court to pronounce judgment upon a conviction according to the right of the case.

The two indictments demurred to are those charging Long with receiving stolen property from Almon H. Proctor, cashier of the First National bank of Ironton. Another indictment charging Long with receiving stolen property to the amount of $12,000 from Proctor which does not state that Proctor is an officer of the bank was not demurred to. Likewise the indictment charging Long with being "an accessory to a felony" was not demurred to.

RECEIVES START IN CAREER HERE

Thomas Bardsley Who Entered N. P. Service Here Retires at Duluth

IS VETERAN ENGINEER

Worked as Fireman Here in 1882 and Promoted to Helmsman in 1884

Brainerd has been the starting point in the careers of many Northern Pacific railway employees of long and reputable standing as in the case of Thomas Bardsley, veteran engineer who pulled his train into Duluth New Year's Day for his last run. Engineer Bardsley retires on a pension at the age of 70 years after completing 45 years and one month of continuous service on the road.

Energetic and spry, keen sighted and still capable of guiding the train on the long stretch of steel, Mr. Bardsley is considered one of the oldest, in point of service, and most reliable locomotive engineers on the N. P. in the opinion of officials. On retirement he will take a long vacation well deserved.

Mr. Bardsley was born in Chester, England, Dec. 16, 1857, and when he was 11 years of age, the Bardsley family came to Chicago where the boy attended school.

"My first job," Mr. Bardsley stated "was working in a boiler shop in Chicago. I was a lad of about 17. Later I worked for a contract company, also in Chicago."

"I always was interested in the railroad and got my first chance on it firing on the Milwaukee road in 1877. I stayed on that job with the Great Northern for about five years. I came to the Northern Pacific in 1882 as a locomotive fireman at Brainerd, got to be switch engineer in August, 1882 and was promoted to road engineer October 10, 1884."

"Railway conditions have changed a lot. Steel cars now, and larger ones. The engines are much heavier now than they used to be. I remember when I pulled a freight locomotive, we had no air pumps or air brakes. As for the tracks—well, the scenery is hardly recognizable, compared to those many years ago. They've cut down hills and filled up hollows, and made grade divisions and everything else to improve the roads."

"The passengers, too—I've pulled a good many of them and I've seen them come and go and watched their styles change. And now I'm going to be a passenger myself, since I'm through here."

SYNOPSIS

Twice Mickey Grogan, orphaned child of The Dump, had been saved from life's one great peril—the truant officer. His first rescuer, Winifred Davidson, is now his friend and to show his gratitude Mickey has deserted many of his old ways and succumbed to soap and water. But Mickey's business of hunting in The Dump for discarded artificial flowers has not been prosperous and he decides to try his luck in a "soup-line." There the truant officer finds him but a nearly blind young man behind him tells the officer Mickey is his son and saves him from the institution. The line is closed while the two argue with the officer but Mickey promises his benefactor, who says his name is Jeffry Shore, that he will provide dinner and they set out, Mickey guiding him through the streets.

Mickey held firmly to his new friend's hand and tugged. "Now, I can't go prince. But if ya promise to keep quiet, I'll tell ya a secret. I'm the President's son investigating conditions 'mong the poor. Only I'm trav'lin incognito." Mickey's light-hearted banter amused the shabby young man and he allowed himself to be drawn forward to a spot where the shadows did not seem so black.

"Never you mind," consoled Mickey. He tilted his head and smiled up at the shabby young man. "Crooked says, 'there ain't nut'in so bad we can't be thankful it ain't worse.'"

"And who may Crooked be?" asked the shabby young man.

"Crooked is a guy who looks like a crooked one at the place we call The Dump. He's pretty bad off, 'cause one side o' him is paralyzed. But that don't stop him from livin' an' makin' the best o' things."

"That settles it," smiled Mr. Ca-

the office without inquiring whether her employer wished to see him. Mr. Cabel had said nothing at the time; but after the visitor had departed, he had called Winifred into his private office, and inquired: "Why hadn't she informed him that Mr. Smith was waiting, instead of showing Mr. Smith in? Winifred was all at sea; she could not form a satisfactory reply, except, 'I thought you were always in to Mr. Smith.'"

"Well, I'm not," Mr. Cabel had snapped in reply. "And I don't want it ever to happen again."

And yet, despite all these depressing incidents of the day, Winifred had told herself that she was happy and that something wonderful was about to occur in her life. When five o'clock arrived, she hummed a popular song as she put on her hat and coat, and Mr. Cabel came in to ask her what all the merriment was about. "I don't know," she answered innocently. "I've just been feeling this way all day."

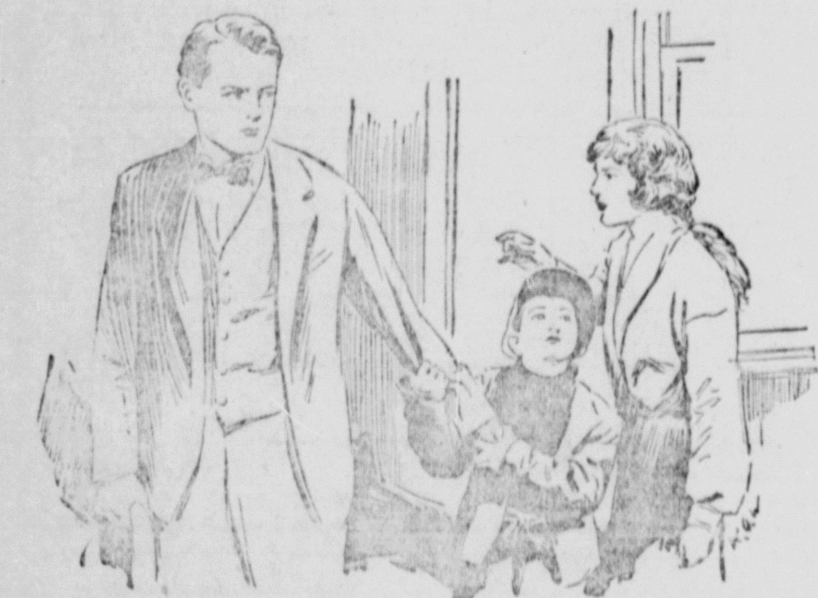

"Perhaps someone is going to cross your path, someone six foot tall with a pug-nacious chin," Mr. Cabel twitted her.

"You can never tell about that," she laughed. "I wouldn't mind the six feet, but I'm not so sure about the pug-nacious chin." Winifred thought of Al Nevvers, whose chin was about as pug-nacious as a chin can be, and she decided to beware of pug-nacious chins.

"I'm sorry if I was a little bit—well, short with you today," apologized Mr. Cabel. "But you see, we have a new cook and she burnt my toast this morning. I was a good example of that man in the cartoons, you know—'How to start the day wrong.'"

"Why I hadn't even realized that you were in bad temper," said Winifred on her way out.

"That settles it," smiled Mr. Ca-

Mickey pulled the young man into the room.

There ain't nothin' so black but what Crooked can't see the bright side. An' believe me, when ya got to take your livin' out of a place like The Dump an' your side is paralyzed, it ain't no cinch to be cheerful."

Mickey's words seemed to strengthen the lines of the shabby young man's mouth. "Did you ever see that poem, Mickey, that runs:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I think whatever Gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

I bet Crooked knows that poem. I tell he probably lives it, too. That's more than I'm able to do. You see, Mickey, I'm going blind."

Mickey wanted to burst into tears, but he was afraid that the shabby young man would hear him. Gosh, it takes all of a kid's spunk to keep from crying sometimes! Blind! He said he was going blind! Mickey tightened his grasp on the young man's fingers. "Don't cha cry. I kin see fine—." Again his fingers tightened. "I'll help yer along—." And as he spoke, he led the shabby young man out of the shadows entirely and into the circle of light that radiated from a street lamp. "What was that poem again?" asked Mickey.

The young man repeated the lines.

"Hully, Gee, that certainly is a swell poem. Sometimes, I wish I knew poetry better. A poem like that must be great when ya ain't got anything to eat. 'Cause then, you kin feel the words inside ya, an' they're better'n food. 'Cause food only fills up your stomach, like, but poetry, it warms your heart, kinda. Ya know what I mean, Jeff?"

"You're quite a little philosopher," said the shabby young man, allowing himself to be drawn along after Mickey.

"Presbyterian," corrected Mickey.

That day, Winifred had worked with a will and she had felt a curious premonition of great happiness to come. It was odd that this feeling should come to her, but there it was, forcing itself upon her, she could not explain why. Not that things had moved so smoothly. Mr. Cabel, her employer, had come down with a grouch. His breakfast had not agreed with him, or perhaps he had caught a cinder in his eye. At any rate, he had lost his temper when Winifred had made a mistake in her typing, and he had wanted to know whether she was ever going to clean the type in her typewriter. After that incident, a man had called, an old business associate of Mr. Cabel's, and Winifred had brought him into

The DAIRY

MUST FEED COWS FOR PRODUCTION

If the dairy industry of North Carolina is to profit most from the introduction of pure-bred cows and bulls brought in by farmers in recent years, the offspring from these animals must be well fed.

"In the three dairy improvement campaigns conducted in this state during the last three years about 850 pure bred, well selected dairy bulls have been placed on that many farms," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college. "This does not include a number of other fine animals brought in through private sales. If the dairy industry is to derive any great benefit from the use of the animals, their offsprings must be well fed. This is true from the time the calf is dropped until it has passed its usefulness as a milk cow. Many failures sired by good bulls have been disappointments are have been stunted in growth and production by under-feeding when they were young."

Mr. Arey states that good breeding is very important in building up the milk and cream production of a herd, but it is ineffective unless the good breeding is accompanied by good feeding. Underfeeding, he states, is largely responsible for dairy cows of this state averaging only about 150 pounds of butterfat a year. This quantity of butterfat selling for 45 cents a pound brings only $67.50 which will not pay for the feed the cow eats. In many cases, the production may be increased from 150 pounds to 225 pounds by liberal feeding. At 45 cents a pound the 225 pounds of fat will bring $101.25 which is enough to give the farmer a good profit for all the feed he produces on his farm and feeds to his cows.

These animals which will not produce as high as 225 pounds of fat when well fed, should be culled from the herd and sold to the butcher; but, no cow should be so condemned until she has had a chance under good feeding and care, states Mr. Arey.

Winter Water Supply Is Important for the Cows

Dairy cows which are giving from 25 to 30 pounds of milk daily will need from nine to ten gallons of water daily, while cows that are giving only a small amount of milk can get along on half of this amount. This fact alone demonstrates that a good water supply is a prerequisite of successful dairying.

When dairy cows are forced to go out into a cold northwest wind and shiver while they are trying to drink out of a trough partially covered with ice, it stands to reason that they will not drink a sufficient amount to produce efficiently. From a standpoint of feed alone, it is cheaper to heat the water with coal or oil than it is to heat it in the cow's body by the use of high-priced feed.

If the question of economy alone were the only point to consider, it would not be so important. However, cows will not produce to their maximum capacity when they are forced to drink ice water. When such conditions exist, it is only natural that cows will drink only sufficient to keep up their body requirements.

Electricity Is Needed to Operate Water Motor

It is easy to install a water system that will give a supply of water at all times under pressure. The old-fashioned elevated tank in the attic or outside on a tower will work, but the latest development is a little compact, self-contained automatic pump that costs less than $75. It consists of an automatic electric pump, a little pneumatic tank and the necessary pipe connections. Set it at the pressure desired—when the pressure drops the pump starts working and keeps on until the pressure is up again. The tank helps to maintain a steady pressure, which means a uniform flow. Of course electricity is necessary to operate the motor, but this is rapidly being made available almost everywhere.

Cream Separator

A cream separator properly installed, lubricated and operated under normal conditions from day to day should not have a wide variation in tests, but there are so many factors, such as temperature, speed of the machine, etc., that affect the tests that it is well to give all of these factors consideration before becoming suspicious of your cream buyer. When the cream screw is turned toward the center it will deliver a much richer cream.

Modern Dairy Methods

The saving of time and labor which is possible with modern dairy-barn construction may easily make the difference between profit and loss. Handled by old methods, the management of a dairy herd was a hard grind which took all the strength a man had, and gave a basis for the assertion that dairying was a dog's life. The newer methods and modern equipment make it possible to handle the job with much less labor and yet do it better.

Such damage is inflicted by the combatants that it is seldom a fish fights more than once. ## Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

"That settles it," smiled Mr. Ca-

bel. "You are going to meet a man six feet tall, but without a pug-nacious chin. His chin won't be weak either. And he'll probably have very interesting eyes."

"Enough!" cried Winifred mockingly. "I don't know that I like you better in your teasing mood than I do in your curt one. Good-night!" And the next moment she was out of the door.

Winifred unlocked the door of her apartment and, for a time, she stood on the threshold admiring the arrangement of the furniture.

"I don't think I have such bad taste after all," she thought to herself. She removed her tight-fitting black toque and tossed her short red-rose hair so that certain strands glowed in the evening light. Suddenly, she felt tired, but not unpleasantly so. Had her cheerfulness that day fatigued her? She smiled at her self and slipped out of her suit into a dressing-gown, a soft, silk thing whose colors added to the girl's beauty. She looked at her self in the mirror and then wrinkled her nose at her reflection. "You vain hussy!" she murmured into the mirror. "I suppose you think you're pretty. But you're not a bit. Your nose is too short and your eyes aren't a bit interesting. And your nose is shiny!" She found her powder puff and dabbed at the end of her nose. "That's better," she thought. "A shiny nose will kill any woman's vanity. Just think of all the money a girl might save if a shiny nose were considered beautiful!"

As she gave her nose a last dab, there came a knock at the door. Thinking it to be the landlady, Winifred went to open it, drawing the negligee more tightly about her throat. But it was not the landlady who stood out there in the hall.

Instead there was Mickey, his face just as dirty as it had been before she had introduced him to a hot bath. But it was the figure standing behind Mickey in the shadow of the stairs, who drew Winifred's startled attention. In this first quick glimpse of the man Winifred could see that he was quite tall, at least six feet, and that his chin was not pug-nacious; but neither was it weak. She decided that it was about perfect. But his eyes puzzled her. They were interesting, but somehow strained and sad.

Before the girl could say a word, Mickey had pulled the young man into the room and shut the door.

Winifred saw that the man's clothes were frayed and old; but they fit him nicely. She decided then that rags would have been becoming to him.

Mickey pulled the young man into the room.

There ain't nothin' so black but what Crooked can't see the bright side. An' believe me, when ya got to make your livin' out of a place like The Dump an' your side is paralyzed, it ain't no cinch to be cheerful."

Mickey's words seemed to strengthen the lines of the shabby young man's mouth. "Did you ever see that poem, Mickey, that runs:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I think whatever Gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

But Crooked knows that poem. And he probably lives it, too. That's more than I'm able to do. You see, Mickey, I'm going blind."

Mickey wanted to burst into tears, but he was afraid that the shabby young man would hear him. Gosh, it takes all of a kid's spunk to keep from crying sometimes! Blind! He said he was going blind! Mickey tightened his grasp on the young man's fingers. "Don't cha care, I kin see fine—!" Again his fingers tightened. "I'll help you along—!" And as he spoke, he led the shabby young man out of the shadows entirely into the circle of light that radiated from a street lamp. "What was that poem again?" asked Mickey.

The young man repeated the lines.

"Hully, Gee, that certainly is a swell poem. Sometimes, I wish I knew poetry better. A poem like that must be great when ya ain't got anything to eat. 'Cause then, you kin feel the words inside ya, an' they're better'n food. 'Cause food only fills up your stomach, like, but poetry, it warms your heart, kinda. Ya know what I mean, Jeff?"

"You're quite a little philosopher," said the shabby young man, allowing himself to be drawn along after Mickey.

"Presbyterlan," corrected Mickey.

That day, Winifred had worked with a will and she had felt a curious premonition of great happiness to come. It was odd that this feeling should come to her, but there it was, forcing itself upon her, she could not explain why. Not that things had moved so smoothly. Mr. Cabel, her employer, had come down with a cough. His breakfast had not agreed with him, or perhaps he had caught a cinder in his eye. At any rate, he had lost his temper when Winifred had made a mistake in her typing, and he had wanted to know whether she was ever going to clean the type in her typewriter? After that incident, a man had called, an old business associate of Mr. Cabel's, and Winifred had brought him into the office without inquiring whether her employer wished to see him. Mr. Cabel had said nothing at the time; but after the visitor had departed, he had called Winifred in to his private office, and inquired: Why hadn't she informed him that Mr. Smith was waiting, instead of showing Mr. Smith in? Winifred was a satisfactory reply, except, "I thought you were always in Mr. Smith."

"Well, I'm not," Mr. Cabel had snapped in reply. "And I don't want it ever to happen again."

And yet, despite all these depressing incidents of the day, Winifred had told herself that she was happy and that something wonderful was about to occur in her life.

When five o'clock arrived, she hummed a popular song as she put on her hat and coat, and Mr. Cabel came in to ask her what all the merriment was about. "I don't know," she answered innocently. "I've just been feeling this way all day."

"Perhaps someone is going to cross your path, someone six foot tall with a pug-nacious chin," Mr. Cabel twitted her.

"You can never tell about that," she laughed. "I wouldn't mind the six feet, but I'm not sure about the pug-nacious chin." Winifred thought of Al Neverson, whose chin was about as pug-nacious as a chin can be, and she decided to beware of pug-nacious chins.

"I'm sorry if I was a little bit—well, short with you today," apologized Mr. Cabel. "But you see, we have a new cook and she burnt my toast this morning. I was a good example of that man in the cartoons, you know—How to start the day wrong."

"Why I hadn't even realized that you were in bad temper," said Winifred on her way out.

"That settles it," smiled Mr. Ca-

bel. "You are going to meet a man six feet tall, but without a pug-nacious chin. His chin won't be weak either. And he'll probably have very interesting eyes."

"Enough!" cried Winifred mockingly. "I don't know that I like you better in your teasing mood than I do in your curt one. Good-night!" And the next moment she was out of the door.

Winifred unlocked the door of her apartment and, for a time, she stood on the threshold admiring the arrangement of the furniture.

"I don't think I have such bad taste after all," she thought to herself. She removed her tight-fitting black toque and tossed her short red-rose hair so that certain strands glowed in the evening light. Suddenly, she felt tired, but not unpleasantly so. Had her cheerfulness that day fatigued her? She smiled at her self and slipped out of her suit into a dressing-gown, a soft, silk thing whose colors added to the girl's beauty. She looked at her self in the mirror and then wrinkled her nose at her reflection. "You vain hussy!" she murmured into the mirror. "I suppose you think you're pretty. But you're not a bit. Your nose is too short and your eyes aren't a bit interesting. And your nose is shiny!" She found her powder puff and dabbed at the end of her nose. "That's better," she thought. "A shiny nose will kill any woman's vanity. Just think of all the money a girl might save if a shiny nose were considered beautiful!"

As she gave her nose a last dab, there came a knock at the door. Thinking it to be the landlady, Winifred went to open it, drawing the negligee more tightly about her throat. But it was not the landlady who stood out there in the hall.

Instead there was Mickey, his face just as dirty as it had been before she had introduced him to a hot bath. But it was the figure standing behind Mickey in the shadow of the stairs, who drew Winifred's startled attention. In this first quick glimpse of the man Winifred could see that he was quite tall, at least six feet, and that his chin was not pug-nacious; but neither was it weak. She decided that it was about perfect. But his eyes puzzled her. They were interesting, but somehow strained and sad.

Before the girl could say a word, Mickey had pulled the young man into the room and shut the door.

Winifred saw that the man's clothes were frayed and old; but they fit him nicely. She decided then that rags would have been becoming to him.

The DAIRY

MUST FEED COWS FOR PRODUCTION

If the dairy industry of North Carolina is to profit most from the introduction of pure-bred cows and bulls brought in by farmers in recent years, the offspring from these animals must be well fed.

"In the three dairy improvement campaigns conducted in this state during the last three years about 850 pure bred, well selected dairy bulls have been placed on that many farms," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at the North Carolina State college. "This does not include a number of other fine animals brought in through private sales. If the dairy industry is to derive any great benefit from the use of the animals, their offsprings must be well fed. This is true from the time the calf is dropped until it has passed its usefulness as a milk cow. Many heifers sired by good bulls have been disappointed in having been stunted in growth and production by under-feeding when they were young."

Mr. Arey states that good breeding is very important in building up the milk and cream production of a herd, but it is ineffective unless the good breeding is accompanied by good feeding. Underfeeding, he states, is largely responsible for dairy cows of this state averaging only about 150 pounds of butterfat a year. This quantity of butterfat selling for 45 cents a pound brings only $67.50 which will not pay for the feed the cow eats. In many cases, the production may be increased from 150 pounds to 225 pounds by liberal feeding. At 45 cents a pound the 225 pounds of fat will bring $101.25 which is enough to give the farmer a good profit for all the feeds he produces on his farm and feeds to his cows.

These animals which will not produce as high as 225 pounds of fat when well fed, should be culled from the herd and sold to the butcher; but, no cow should be so condemned until she has had a chance under good feeding and care, states Mr. Arey.

Winter Water Supply Is Important for the Cows

Dairy cows which are giving from 25 to 30 pounds of milk daily will need from nine to ten gallons of water daily, while cows that are giving only a small amount of milk can get along on half of this amount. This fact alone demonstrates that a good water supply is a prerequisite of successful dairying.

When dairy cows are forced to go out into a cold northwest wind and shiver while they are trying to drink out of a trough partially covered with ice, it stands to reason that they will not drink a sufficient amount to produce efficiently. From a standpoint of feed alone, it is cheaper to heat the water with coal or oil than it is to heat it in the cow's body by the use of high-priced feed.

If the question of economy alone were the only point to consider, it would not be so important. However, cows will not produce to their maximum capacity when they are forced to drink ice water. When such conditions exist, it is only natural that cows will drink only sufficient to keep up their body requirements.

Electricity Is Needed to Operate Water Motor

It is easy to install a water system that will give a supply of water at all times under pressure. The old-fashioned elevated tank in the attic or out on a tower will work, but the latest development is a little compact, self-contained automatic pump that costs less than $75. It consists of an automatic electric pump, a little pneumatic tank and the necessary pipe connections. Set it at the pressure desired—when the pressure drops the pump starts working and keeps on until the pressure is up again. The tank helps to maintain a steady pressure, which means a uniform flow. Of course electricity is necessary to operate the motor, but this is rapidly being made available almost everywhere.

Cream Separator

A cream separator properly installed, lubricated and operated under normal conditions from day to day should not have a wide variation in tests, but there are so many factors, such as temperature, speed of the machine, etc., that affect the tests that it is well to give all of these factors consideration before becoming suspicious of your cream buyer. When the cream screw is turned toward the center it will deliver a much richer cream.

Modern Dairy Methods

The saving of time and labor which is possible with modern dairy-barn construction may easily make the difference between profit and loss. Handled by old methods, the management of a dairy herd was a hard grind which took all the strength a man had, and gave a basis for the assertion that dairying was a dog's life. The newer methods and modern equipment make it possible to handle the job with much less labor and yet do it better.

Finny Combats

In the Far East, combats between fighting fish are held before huge audiences, fortunes being won and lost over the issue. Such damage is inflicted by the combatants that it is seldom a fish fights more than once. But the victor cannot be said to have won "on points" for, unlike our own little "light-weight champion"—the stickleback—the Siamese fighting fish has no spines to use as weapons.—London Tit-Bits.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage. Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.
